ASG LAUNCHES RESEARCH DATABASE WEBSITE

The Associated Student Government announced today the release of its "ASG-NURD" (Northwestern Undergraduate Research Database), which serves as a central research information website consisting of research opportunities for each college at Northwestern, Office of Fellowships, Study Abroad, and Undergraduate Research Database. ASG founded ASG-NURD because the university lacks one central website for research opportunities.

The new website can be visited at: <http://asg.northwestern.edu/nurd> and is accessible on the top right and right hand side of NULink's homepage.

ASG's President Neal Sales-Griffin remarked, "Never before has NU had a website that collects all of this research information. We are really excited to be able to offer this for the first time."

Mike McGee, ASG Academic Vice-President and Chairman of ASG-NURD, remarked, "ASG-NURD serves as a gateway to the undergraduate research opportunities that NU already has scattered among dozens of websites. This service has long been needed by the student body, and we are very happy that ASG is able to provide this 'one stop shop' for students' research needs. The site will undoubtedly facilitate students' access to research opportunities."
